

Taking Informed Action: Create Your Own Historical Marker

Task: Create your own historical marker about westward expansion and Native American history in Georgia.

Student Instructions: Follow the steps to "Understand," "Assess," and "Act."

Understand: Students complete the Native American History in Georgia Online Georgia Historical Marker Scavenger Hunt.

Assess: Choose one marker included in the scavenger hunt to learn more about the topic. Assess the historical marker for the source information, main idea, and supporting evidence and then focus on what details may be missing to tell the whole story.

Act: Conduct research with primary and secondary sources based on the assessment of the historical marker. Use the research to rewrite the marker. Marker texts should have 130 words or less and should be arranged as a point-by-point narrative. Each point should be supported by evidence found while researching. Use the GHS "Create Your Own Marker" worksheet (included in this pdf or available online) to organize research and writing.

After rewriting the historical marker consider the following questions:

- How does the rewritten marker text compare to the original text of the marker?
- What details were changed and why?
- Did the new text gain information that was missing previously? Did the new text leave out any details?
- Have a classmate review the new marker text and compare it to the old? Do they have any critiques of the changes made to the text? Do they have any questions that you did not consider or suggestions for strengthening the message of the text?

Georgia Historical Marker Program Application – Research Documentation Workshee

Please use the below guide to list important facts, as well as the documented sources for you	ır research.

Ex:

Fact One
The HMS Kashmir struck the HMS Otranto on (Scotland).	October 6, 1918, off the coast of Islay
Source: Book	How and Where was the Source Accessed?
Scott, R. Neil. Many Were Held By Sea: The Tragic Sinking of HMS Otranto. Rowman and Littlefield.	Online; GoogleBooks
Fact One
Source:	How and Where was the Source Accessed?

Fact Two
Source:	How and Where was the Source
	Accessed?

Fact Three
Source:	How and Where was the Source
Source:	Accessed?
	Accessed.
Fact Four
Tact Four
Source:	How and Where was the Source
333.32.	Accessed?

Fact Five
Source:	How and Where was the Source
	Accessed?
Fact Six
Source	How and Where was the Source
	Accessed?
Fact Seven
Source:	How and Where was the Source
Source.	Accessed?

Fact Eight
	,
Source:	How and Where was the Source
	Accessed?
Fact Nine
Source:	How and Where was the Source
Source:	Accessed?
	Accessed:
Fact Ten
ract lell
Source:	How and Where was the Source
	Accessed?

Now it's your turn to create a historical marker! Remember to use the following guidelines:

- Construct historical marker text so that it is a point by point, chronological narrative of the subject and its historical significance.
- Each line in the historical narrative should be verifiable with resources cited in in your research document.
- Propose historical marker text that is 130 words or less. This does not include titles and the "erected by" language (the organizations who created the marker).

